Kevin Huysegoms joins Technological Innovations Group

TIG (Technological Innovations Group), the leading audio visual sales agency in Europe, is delighted to announce that Kevin Huysegoms has joined the organisation as Sales Engineering Manager. A valuable addition to the company, Kevin is based at the TIG HQ offices in Belgium.

Kevin has a key role in the TIG Sales Engineering team, ensuring that customers continue to benefit from first-class sales engineering, service and support; from the provision of webinars and training on the TIG range of brands, to helping project manage the implementation of the new TIG Experience Centres which will launch in the coming months in both the UK and Frankfurt.

Having previously worked for Robin van Meeuwen as Advanced Technical Support Manager for Crestron in Europe, Kevin is very experienced in the technology as well as the market. Robin van Meeuwen, CEO of TIG explains he is well-suited to the role: Kevin's knowledge, professionalism, abundant energy and enthusiasm are key ingredients to the way we want to approach our customers and he will undoubtedly be successful in helping grow our business for the many years to come".

Kevin adds: "I am very excited about the opportunity to join the great TIG team and I feel a huge drive to do some amazing things with colleagues, partners and customers."

Over the coming months, Kevin will also be heavily involved in building a suite of educational tools that complement the TIG brands and which will be designed to provide accessible, easy to use training for integrators and end-users alike.

TIG continues to build relationships with brands at the forefront of innovative technology, and recently announced YachtCloud as the latest addition to its growing portfolio alongside Crestron and Oblong Industries, Mezzanine.
