New UK Offices for Crestron Europe and TIG

Leading technology manufacturer Crestron Europe and its exclusive EMEA sales agency TIG are relocating their offices in the UK to provide increased support for customers. The support team and training rooms move to Weybridge, while the new TIG sales office can be found in the heart of Cobham, Surrey.

The new Crestron office space at 400 Dashwood Lang Road in Weybridge will offer increased training facilities to enable commercial and residential AV professionals to prepare for the control system design and programming challenges they face every day. The modular office spaces benefit from movable dividing walls to facilitate modern working culture and will be equipped with the latest Crestron solutions for room scheduling and unified collaboration. The Weybridge office will also be the home of the support team, comprised of accomplished service technicians and specialists. This support team is backed up by the experts situated in the Crestron head offices in Belgium and the US.

Ideally suited for all levels of professional development, Crestron invites its partners to the Weybridge training rooms to discover and experience the quality offered by DM NVX™, the full Crestron Flex portfolio including Crestron Mercury® and soundbar with integrator camera. Every room will also be equipped with AirMedia® for wireless transmission of data. Fliptops, scheduling panels and signs, as well as Crestron AirBoard™ will further simplify training and meeting environments and provide dealers and installers a fantastic showcase of Crestron equipment. The full office will be managed through Crestron XiO Cloud™, a platform for effortless deployment and control of all the equipment.

Crestron's exclusive sales agent in EMEA, Technological Innovations Group (TIG), is relocating to the Long Barn, an Accrue Workplace flagship building in Cobham. The ethos of the new workspace promotes flexible working for staff and, combined with easy access by car or train, makes this an accessible location from central London. The location mirrors the corporate strategy perfectly for TIG, as the new experience centre will be based in London and is due to open later this year. More details to follow.
